

Life is Love

"For I know the plans I have for you," declares the LORD, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future."

Jeremiah 29:11

SANCTITY OF HUMAN LIFE SUNDAY

God gave us a tiny Rosebud,
Meghan's the fragile kind.
She hasn't yet opened her petals,
They're so delicate and fine.

God sent her to a devoted family,
To care for and to love,
His angels look upon her,
From heaven up above.

Now we wait and hope and pray,
For her petals to open wide,
So she will know her own beauty,
Which God has stored inside.

Then she will bloom vividly,
In the colorful garden of Love,
Misting her wonderful fragrance,
Among her family and angels above.

God's Tiny Rosebud

Meghan came into the world on October 16, 2002. She was born without any apparent health problems. For the first three weeks, she ate, grew, slept and did everything a healthy, happy baby would do. Then, without warning in the second week of November, Meghan's health started to change.

After a series of unexplained seizures, Meghan no longer is able to move her arms or legs and is dependent on a ventilator. When she wakes from a long sleep, she will stretch her back. She also can move her head from side to side. And Meghan's smile lights up the room.

Through all the ups and downs of Meghan's medical challenges, her family continues to hope and pray.

Meghan is a daughter, a granddaughter, a sister, a niece and a friend. Her life has immeasurable value not only to those around her, but also because she is a precious and irreplaceable individual. Meghan's future is unclear – in reality, everyone's future is uncertain, but as members of the human family we have a responsibility to care for and to love each other. Meghan and her family teach us that life is love.

For updates on Meghan's health, please visit www.babymeghan.org.